

The Slip viaduct (also called Chalford viaduct)
This may be considered as a 'half viaduct' as only the 'up' line was on a viaduct and the 'down' line was actually on a shelf carved out of the hillside. The name relates to the fact that a landslip had occurred in the area some years before the railway.